

Breaking ice

"This sequence of falling ice reminds us of the constant transformations taking place on our planet. Matter is neither created nor destroyed but transformed.

Life evolved on earth about 3,800 million years ago because Earth is at right distance from the sun, it has liquid water, and it allows cycles.

Nature has much to teach us humans!"

MAISA ROJAS CORRADI
Climatologist